CATTLE STAMPEDES. Slight Causes May Set the Herd Frantie and then Cowboys Must Ride Hard.

"Speaking of a stampede among cattle," said a man from the foothills of the Sierra Nevada, "it is surprising what a trifling thing will start one that may cost the lives of one or more cowboys and the loss of perhaps hundreds of cattle before it can be controlled. One of the most serious in my new quarters. stampedes I ever heard of was the one Bronco John Sullivan, the Texas cowboy, tells about. He was coming up the Texas trail one spring in company with other cowboys, having in charge a bunch of 4,000 cattle. One of the boys opened his tobacco pouch to get a chew. The wind blew a shred or two of the finecut out of his fingers. The fugitive tobacco floated away and lodged in a steer's eye. In a moment the eye began to smart, and the steer got wild. Its antics started others in the herd, and in ten seconds the big bunch was surging and dashing about, out of all control. It was two days before they got the herd working quickly again. Two of the best cow-head of cattle were lost. "Hail storms are greatly dreaded by cowboys on the trail, especially if they come at night, when the cattle are sleeping. If a hailstone happens to strike a steer in the eye, a stampede is pretty sure to follow. He springs to his feet, and in thrashing around steps on the tails of others. They jump up in pain. The herd is alarmed, and before anything can be successfully done to stay them the whole herd are off like a flash. The bark of a coyote when everything is still at night has stampeded many a bunch of cattle disastrously. A blade of grass, carried along by the wind, sometimes strikes a steer in the eye. The pain that follows will set him wild, and he can soon have the herd on the run across "It is during a stampede that the cowboy has work to do. His one great gether. country at a twenty-mile-an-hour gait. object is to keep the flying herd totic cattle at the constant risk of his life, and works them gradually in a circle. The cowboys all ride to the right around a stampeding herd. If they can get the cattle running in a circle the first important step in reknow of a stampede when the cowboys were obliged to ride around a herd for a distance of over 200 miles before they got it under control, and then it was only twenty-five miles from where the stampede started. In all that time not one of the cowboys took a moment's rest or a bite to eat. Such things can't be thought of during a stampede."

Just as the train moved out of the station a little, nervous-looking man came along. He asked the man with the turkey to take the bird up and give him the seat. The man refused, whereupon the nervous man attempted to move the turkey aside himself. "No, you don't," said the bird's owner. "That turkey is going to have a whole seat to himself." "You haven't paid for two seats," said the other, red with rage. "Haven't l? Well, just see me do it now." He called to the conductor. "Here," he said passing his book over, "take out another fare for this friend of mine." and he nodded jocosely in the direction of the bird. The conductor looked a little dubious for a few seconds, then tore out the ticket.—Boston Globe.

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of Ohio. LEGISLATIVE SINGLE DISTRICTS.

SECTION 1. Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio. That a proposition shall be submitted to the electors of this State on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1893, to amend Sections 1 to 11, inclusive, of Article XL of the Constitution of the State of Ohio, so they shall read as follows: ARTICLE XI.

State of Ohio, so they shall read as follows:

ARTICLE XI.

SEC 1. The apportionment for members of the general assembly shall be made every ten years, prior to the first election for members of the general assembly in each decennial period, in the manner herein provided.

SEC 2. During-the month of February prior to the first election for members of the general assembly after the passage of this act and in each decennial period the members of the sensite and house of representatives representing the two leading political parties, respectively, shall meet in separate bodies, and each of said bodies shall designate two electors who shall forwith be appointed by the governor; and said four electors so designated and appointed shall constitute a commission who shall ascertain and determine the ratio of representatives and senators, the number of representatives and senators, the number of representatives to which each county is entitled and the boundaries of each senatorial district. Should any vacancy occur in said commission the senators of the party making the original designation shall, within ten days thereafter, designate an elector to fill such vacancy, and he shall forthwith be appointed by the governor.

SEC 3. The population of the state, as ascertained by the preceding federal census, or in such other manner as the general assembly shall direct, shall be divided by the number "one hundred" and the quotient shall be the ratio of representation in the house of representatives for the ten years succeeding such apportionment.
